

TAIRA AR

Color the picture-engravings of Taira and discover the myths about the origin of the llamas.

Rock art is the name given to the markings or figures drawn by humans on rock supports. For the inhabitants of the Andes mountains, to engrave and paint on rock was the same as to make a wish. To make a picture-engraving depicting a llama on the rock shelter called "Taira" (located in northern Chile) ensured reproduction of the llama and the birth of many offspring in a herd.
